TION-NOT GUILTY OF IMPROPER CONDUCT. The only witness yesterday in the trial of the Rev. Benjamin Staunton before the Brooklyn Pres-bytery was the defendant himself. He is tall, with a ther stern and gloomy expression. He has a full red the bears and mustache, dark hair and a high white chead. To the prosecuting counsel he showed considable temper; he refused to answer some questions and as other times blurted out his answers with unneces-

On cross-examination by the Rev. Mr. Foote, the witness said:

I do not know whether Mrs. Laidier paid board at my house or not. I did not know her presence annoyed my wife. I consented to the separation from my wife for her good.

When asked if he considered his wife a fit person to train their daughter, he declined to answer, as the question would come up in a civil suit. When asked what the "divers disputes and unhappy differences" referred to in the deed of separation were, Mr. Staunton said: "They referred to such thinks as shirt buttons, tea. coffee, etc." He would not admit having called Mrs. Laidler upstairs, as was tessified by John H. Trevor. He never took a pisto to his house to protect himself against Mr. Laidler. He never told John H. Trevor that Mr. Laidler. He never told John H. Trevor that Mr. Laidler thresiened to shoot him. When he put up his hand to protect himself from his wife, he recalled that she had rushed upon him twice before, and he did not wish to risk it a third time, He did not know that forty or fifty members had left his church in consequence of the rumors about his moral character. The separation between him and his wife did not grow out of any alleged intimacy with Mrs. Laidler.

Q.—This trouble aside, was there a prospect of your building up a prosperous church! A.—There was.

The witness said under his ministry eighty-two had joined the church and forty-six took letters to go away.

On the redirect examination he said that before Mrs. Staunton's return from the country he had tried to find a home for Mrs. Laidler in her disastrous circumstances.

Q.—Did you call her up stairs to help you move furniture! A.—I have no recollection of such a thing.
Q.—What about the time Mrs. Staunton claims to have found you in the basement! A.—After I had read hard one night! I went down stairs to cool my head by letting the water run on it. It was about half-past 2. Mrs. Staunton came down in her bare feet. Mrs. Laidler was not there and no alinston was made to her. I had not seen her that night.

The questioning was suspended to allow the Presbytery in secret session to hear the words which certain witnesses were unwilling to repeat in public. Mr. Staunton will be on the stand again to-day.

NEW-JERSEY.

NEW-JERSEY. AN OLD WELL IN CITY HALL PARK.

The Park Department recently gave to the Bridge Trustees ermission to make use of the lawn on the eastern side of the Hall of Records in the City Hall Park. It is a strip about ten feet wide and 100 feet long over which the bootblacks and newsboys trainped and wore down every blade of grass that attempted to grow. A gang of workmen have been busy several days levelling the plot oven with the pavement to make a broader sidewalk for the new entrance to the Bridge. When he earth was taken away from the foundations of the Hali of Records it left exposed two old windows and a doorway into the side of the building. These had been blocked up and althe side of the building. These had been blocked up and almost entirely concealed when the lawn was made. The Hall of Records was a private house during the flevolution and it is said that the American prisoners were led through this side entrance down into the cellar that was the dangeon of the prison; the side windows were covered with grating.

Near the end of the lawn was a locust tree of a stanted growth. The workmen cut it down and while diagrag up the stump came upon some large stenes covering an oil well. Park Engineer Kellogg found that it was forty feet deep. The walls were carefully bricked and in good condition, and there were ten feet of water in it. It is supposed that the well was used for the prison. An old by stander who looked on with the crowd said that the well was also used by the pupils of the first public school of New-York that stood near the spot in 1810. The well will be nited up to-day and diagrationes laid over it.

TO ENTERTAIN POREIGN GUESTS. TO ENTERTAIN FOREIGN GUESTS.

the importance of modern saccost defences, and it was deferred for future consideration. A letter significant of the

as the imposts on Australian wool were concerned.

As may be imagined from the elaborate style in which report says this play is mounted, the rehearsal of the stage effects has not been the least pertion of the work done. Mr. Barrett himself is in excellent health, and his throat, though causing him some pain, has left his voice unimpaired. The sale of seats for the first week has been going on for the last few days, and the curtain will rise on Monday night to a crowded house. The sale continues, of course, to day and to-morrow, and some good seats are still to be had.

The brig Scud, after a stormy passage from Rarbadoes, arrived here yesterday. On September 22 she met a violent harrivane off the Florida coast but she escaped with the loss of only a couple of sails and some rigring. Another temposit was experienced on September 27, and the vessel was hove to under a close reself tryssal and a drag out astern to twenty-four hours. Two days later she had another harricane and was forced to run before it. A heavy unbroken sea came over the decks, burying the vessel under for a moment, and tore away the taffiral and some of the stern planking and caused the vessel to loak. The free working of the pumps kept the vessel affort.

The committee to which the trouble had been referred reported yesterday in favor of Mr. Wynn's congregation, but in a closing sentence expressed a willinguess to let Mr. Spellman organize a new church. The matter was again referred to the committee, which was enlarged. It reported last evening that it was unable to change the first report. Mr. Wynn said that he was authorized to say that unless the letter of his church was accepted the church would with draw from membership in the Baptist Association. His position was supported by the Rev. Drs. OPENING OF A NEW STOCK OF MILLINERY. It is natural to expect that when an enterprising firm bends all its energies to furnishing one class of goods, it must achieve the highest possible success. Such a one is the known millinery house of James G. Johnson, No. 8 East Four teenth-at. The regular fall opening is going on there this week, and the crowded condition of the store bears ample wit ness to the popularity of the house, the unexceiled quality of the stock and the great variety of the goods so tasterully and effectively displayed. The line of trimmings is complete. The passementaric includes all the new heliotrope shades and a variety of designs. This house makes a specialty of keeping on hand ample materials with which to duplicate any remarkable specimen of work in this line that may be brought from Europe. The importation of French bonnets and hats, trimmed and untriumed, for this season is unsurpassed in the history of the firm. The variety and extent of the velvet trimmings for bonnets is surprising. The feather trimmings are beautiful, and the long rows of natural birds, artistically set up, make the big plate glass show case look like some tropical artisty. The ribbons, jewelry and gloves ambrace all the new ideas in fine and medium grades. PREVENTING CRUELTY TO CHILDREN.

THE BROOKLYN JOCKEY CLUB'S RACES.

THREE FAVORITES SUCCESSFUL-ELKWOOD AND WICEHAM OUTRUN.

THREE FAVORITES SUCCESSFUL—ELEWOOD AND WICE HAM OUTRUN.

The attendance at the Brooklyn Jockey Club's track yesterdaywas small as compared with that on some of the days of the opening meeting, yet between 2,500 and 3,000 people passed through the gates. Although the sport was good, enthusiasm did not run high. Racegoers have not yet become accustomed to the quiet way of betting that strict police action makes, necessary. The betting was done in the betting pavilion and each bookmaker was at his regular stand. Pads with the odds on them were laid on a table beside the bookmaker.

The favorites won the first three races; then came the surprises, and they were of huge proportions. Wickham and Elkwood were beaten by what was considered to be a rather poor lot. Neither of them got even as good as third place. Wickham was the favorite at 8 to 5, and Elkwood a gool second choice at 2 to 1. Ten to one could have been had against anything else in the race excepting Royal Arch, and it was 6 to 1 against him. Adonts, a 15-to-1 chance, won, never being headed from start to finish. The Dwyers' cast off, Pontice, an outsider, secured the selling race with ease in fast time. Broughton, the favorite, did not get a place, and poor old Marsh Redon broke down. The favorites that

ENGLISH CRICKETERS SAIL FOR HOME.

A large number of Englishmen and cricketers gathered on the White Star pier at West Tenth st. to say good by to the team of English smateur cricketers who have been on a tour through the United States and Canada, and were returning home on the Adriatic. The English cricketers played eight matches during their stay, two in Canada, two in New-York, twe in Philadelphia, one in Baltimore and one in Boston all " Accordingly," said Mr. Sanders, manager of the team, yes.

Our visit has been exceedingly pleasant; we have enjoyed ourselve amazingly, and we carry back with us nothing but pleasan amazingly, and we carry back with us nothing but bleasant recollections of our month's solourn in the United States. I can't say anything yet about coming next year. The Philadelphians tak of psying England a visit next summer, and if they come over I don't think it probable that I should bring another team to the United States. If the Philadelphians don't come, why that puts an entirely different complexion on things, and if your great earthquake hasn't appeared before then and wiped you all off the face the earth, I think I may come over again. If I don't come next year, all being well, I think it very likely that the following year will see us again in the United States."

The last bed iften rang, the final "good-bye" spoken and the Englishmen were of on their home-ward journey.
